

JAZZ ARTIST MILES LENNOX RELEASES DEBUT ALBUM, “SOMETHING TO SAY”

(NEW YORK, NY - June 7, 2020) Soundseekers Entertainment announces the release of the debut full-length album from jazz pianist, composer and bandleader Miles Lennox. The self-released album, “Something To Say”, features 11 original compositions with Miles on piano and keyboard, joined by some of the finest young musicians on the East Coast and skillfully produced by New York jazz veteran Stephen Scott. With a sound that is uniquely his own, this young artist definitely has something to say.

“Miles’ debut album marks the arrival of a fresh voice which is clearly at the forefront of its generation”.

- Stefon Harris, jazz vibraphonist & educator

“Something To Say” is now available for listening on Spotify, Apple Music, Google Play, Amazon Music and all major streaming platforms worldwide. CDs can be purchased directly from the website www.mileslennox.com.

Background: Originally from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, Miles first received national recognition in 2019 for his composition, “Open Windows”, which won Best Big Band Composition at the Essentially Ellington High School Jazz Band Competition & Festival in New York City. Miles, who was 18 at the time, also won Outstanding Soloist for Piano at the event and had his composition recorded by the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra at their annual Essentially Ellington recording session on May 8, 2019. He has since toured China and Taiwan with Carnegie Hall’s NYO Jazz Band and moved to New York City to continue his jazz studies at the Manhattan School of Music.
